

ONE MONTH IN SEVILLE

ADVENTURES AND ADJUSTMENTS

It's hard to believe that a month has already flown by here in Seville! We've settled into the rhythm of Spanish life, fully adjusted to the different paces, and we even look forward to our siestas! This past month has been packed with new adventures and incredible travel opportunities, each one leaving us with unforgettable memories.

The highlight of the month was definitely our trip to Morocco, something I'd been eagerly anticipating. The experience lived up to the hype! We rode camels during sunset at a beautiful beach, which felt surreal. We had a traditional local dinner, where two of my friends (Lola and Brendan) staged a fun, pretend wedding ceremony (definitely one for the memory books). Exploring the bustling local markets was another unforgettable part of the trip; seeing Moroccan culture's colors, smells, and vibrancy was amazing.

As my friend Jack said, "The shops were a haggler's dream and the culture was EXTREMELY lively."

Our weekends have been a mix of local discovery and international travel, with a few free weekends that many students used to explore Europe. Some ventured off to London, others to Italy, Portugal, France, Ireland, and beyond. The chance to be immersed in Seville's culture during the week and hop over to other parts of Europe on the weekend has been an incredible part of this study abroad experience.

Looking back on the month, I'm grateful for the memories and friendships I've made, and I can't wait to see what the coming weeks bring!
